CRIMINAL KILLS WOMAN WITH PIPE

Drags Victim Into Alley in Milwaukee and Beats Her Head to Pulp

GIVES SELF UP TO THE POLICE

Walks Into Station but Refuses to Give Reasons for the Crime

MILWAUKEE, Oct. 20.—"I am sorry she was an old woman."

This was the only statement today of Harry Korow, convicted forger, who has confessed to the police that he perpetrated the murder late Sunday of Mrs. Emily Will in an alley near Cherry street, here.

The case closely parallels the Chicago Leegson murder. The victim, a fairly well dressed woman of about 45, was attacked from behind. Her head was crushed with a piece o- pipe. After striking her down, the murderer dragged her eighty feet into an alley where, after twisting her scarf about her throat he beat her face and head almost to a pulp with the bludgeon.

While thus engaged he was discovered by Oscar Lange, who was returning to his home in an automobile. Lange grappled with Dorow but the latter escaped. Two hours later, the police cordon thrown out, had failed to locate the slayer, Dorow walked into the west side police station and confessed his crime.

Dorow gave the name George Schultz, but was identified by the Bertillon records. He refuses to give any reason for the crime and as far as the police can observe he is perfectly normal. When arrested his hand and face were smeared with his victim's blood.

Arrests Sisters Slayer

William Maas, police lieutenant, was prostrated today when he learned that the man whom he arrested last night for the murder of an unidentified woman was the murderer of his only sister, Mrs. Emily Will, 52.

When Harry Dorow, 32, walked into the West Side station last night and gave himself up, confessing the murder, Maas was on watch. He took Dorow's confession and locked up the prisoner. Mrs. Will's body was taken to the morgue.

Today Maas went to the morgue to help the coroner arrange for examination of Doro and he recognized his sister.

FORMER LOCAL WOMAN DEAD

CHICAGO, papers today carried a short item telling of the death of Mrs. W. E. Atherton, wife of an employe of Swift & Co., at her home in Chicago. Mrs. Atherton was found dead in the bath room of her home. In view of the fact that Prof. Lewis Atherton, formerly of the local normal school, is now employed by Swift & Co., in Chicago, friends here are in doubt whether the story may not refer to his wife.

DECIDE TO PERMIT PANKHURST ENTRY

Will Be Allowed to Come to United States Under Her Own Recognizance

DOUBT OF MORAL TURPITUDE

Should She Break Law Here She Will Be Arrested and Deported

WASHINGTON, Oct. 20.—Following a conference between President Wilson and Secretary of Labor Wilson, it was announced at the White house that Mrs. Emmeline Pankhurst, the British suffrage leader would be admitted to the United States without bond. She will be permitted to enter the country on her own cognizance.

Secretary Wilson said this action was taken becaise of the fact that there was serious doubt that her acts in England constituted moral turpitude. Should she break the law in this country, Secretary Wilson said it will be an easy matter to arrest and deport her.

Following this admission, Commissioner of Immigration Caminetti wired the Ellis Island officials at New York to release the English woman who has been detained there since her arrival on La Procence last Saturday.

Mrs. Pankhurst was resting at the home of Mrs. O. H. P. Belmont this afternoon. Within an hour after the order for her release was received from Washington, Mrs. Pankhurst boarded a boat bound for Manhattan from Ellis Island. At the battery she entered an automobile and was driven directly to the Belmont home. The English militant leader said every courtesy had been shown her on the island. Her attendants were sympathetic, kind and considerate.

I believe that the action of the senate upon the bill will follow within two or at most, three weeks after the report is made. JUNGLE BEASTS TERRORIZE CITY

Car Hits Circus Van and a Tiger and Eight Lions Are Set Free

BEASTS FINALLY ARE SHOT

Two Lions Enter Crowded Hotel and Troops Are Called to Quell Disturbance

LEIPZIG, Oct. 20.—When a street car collided with a circus wagon at midnight it liberated one tiger and eight lions and Leipzig was in an uproar until daylight today.

Woman Captures Tiger

The female trainer of the animals succeeded in recapturing the tiger, but the lions had a merry time until the police killed six and roped two. One lion leaped to the driver's seat of an automobile bus and dispossessed the chauffeur, to the discomforture of the passengers. A policeman shot the beast from his perch.

Five other lions were shot down in the streets. Two more leaped through the plate glass front of the Blucher hotel and made high carnival in the corridors all night. The hotel was crowded with guests who had attended the military centennial celebration on Saturday. The guests, screaming with terror, barricaded themselves in their rooms and distracted the clerk with calls for help. Some were for escaping through the windows, but quickly crawled back when they saw the turmoil in the streets below.

Call Out Troops

The police reserves, the fire department and the troops quartered without the town were called on to capture the lions and restore order. A thick fog added to the terror of the night, and the whole city was in a panic. The two lions in possession of the hotel were recaptured at daybreak and led off to the police station, where their execution was ordered, despite the frantic pleading of the woman trainer, who followed the police, begging for the lives of her pets.

SHOT BY ACCIDENT YOUTH GASPS LAST IN PASTOR'S ARMS

Arthur Umberger of La Crescent Receives Charge from Own Gun in Breast While Hunting

PICKED UP BY BRIDAL COUPLE

Minister with Newly Weds in Auto Rush Youth to La Crosse but Too Late to Save His Life

LA CROSSE WOMAN NEAR DEATH

Mrs. Charles Johnson Escapes when Shotgun Charge Goes Through Wall of Her Home

Held in the arms of a minister, Arthur Umberger, aged 18 years, La Crescent, Minn., died while being rushed in the auto of a bridal couple to this city—the first victim claimed by the 1912 hunting season in this section. The young man was horribly wounded in the left breast while getting out of his hunting skif at La Crescent lake, near his home.

Accurate details of the accident are lacking because at the time only one other hunter was near enough to Umberger to witness the shooting. He was L. H. Brown, famous rattle snake hunter of La Crescent, who was several rods away. He heard the report of the gun and saw the youth plunge to the ground. Brown paddled with all his might to the scene but arriving found the victim gone. The gun, a repeating shotgun, lay beside the hunting skiff with the magazine full and one empty shell in the barrel.

Umberger dragged himself from beside the skiff, up an embankment and onto the highway leading from La Crescent to La Crosse. Weakened from loss of blood he rested and then dragged himself to the opposite side of the road where he lost consciousness.

Bridal Paid Aid

Otto Parchman, member of the firm of Palmer & Parchman, local liveryman, was driving to La Crescent and saw the young man drag himself across the road.

At the same time a car driven by Milton Radke, La Crosse, and occupied by Rev. H. G. Magelsson, 511 South Sixth street, this city, and Mr. and Mrs. Dalmer Ruud, Westby, Wis., the latter a couple who had just been married at La Crescent,, drew up.

Race With Death

The young man was lifted into the front seat of the car and held by the pastor of the Norwegian Evangelical Lutheran church, while the bridal couple attempted to ease his suffering. A mad race against death followed, Radke, the chauffeur, driving with all speed for La Crosse. The unfortunate youth gasped his last, says Rev. Maglesson, just as the Mississippi wagon bridge was reached. The shot had entered his left breast just above the heart, several an artery.

The young man was the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Umberger, proprietors of the general store at La Crescent. He is survived by a mother and father, two sisters and one brother.

The young man was taken to the undertaking rooms of Fessler & Dahl at La Crosse and funeral arrangements will be completeed later.

Woman Escapes Death

Mrs. Charles Johnson, 1425 South Ninth street, narrowly escaped death Sunday night when a shotgun, in the hands of Charles Ersham, son of Anton Ersham, people residing in the same house, went off accidentally and sent the charge through a wall but a few feet from the head of Mrs. Johnson, who was in an adjoining room.

Ersham, it is said, was about to clean the gun, having returned from a hunting trip, and "didn't know it was loaded."

At first it was believed that Mrs. Johnson had been seriously injured and Dr. G. J. Egan was summoned. He found her hysterical but uninjured.

FUN AND MUSIC AT THE MAJESTIC

New Bill Has Uproarious Comedy Acts as Well as Charming Musical Numbers

A show chock full of pleasing variations, embracing the extreme of comedy and the sweetest of music, with each number a distinct hit, was the verdict handed over the footlights in generous applause by the audience witnessing the first performance of the five act vaudeville bill opening the week at the Majestic yesterday afternoon.

John White's animal circus features the performance this week, proving that there is something new under the sun. White is a topliner when it comes to injecting real fun into an indoor circus and is a clever bareback rider. A score of the cleverest trained dogs the Majestic has ever seen vie for supremacy with two knowing little mules. With the aid of a tiny spring board, a greyhound jumps more than nine feet in th air over a stack of barrels. The one ring miniature "big top" ends with an attempt to ride a balky mule. A roar ensues when a southern cotton picker is tossed about by the gentle little animal.

The Milch Sisters entertain with selections from the classics on the violin and cello. The number closes with several folk song selections that grasp the better side of the audience.

The Davey-Getsey trio present "Fifteen Minutes in Songland." Aside from the song hits of the day, a number of original airs are sung. Besides getting perfect harmony out of their singing, the boys are clever dancers. A feature of their skit is the side show called "On a Railroad." The famous "Casey" is imitated and the sensation of a fast run on a "flyer" is felt. Their music, mixed with clever jokes, wins for them several curtain calls.

Yerxa and Adele, equilibrists, do some astonishing body twisting and balancing on slight pedestals. Edmunds and Gaylor add another mixed music and comedy number to the bill. They win big applause.

Now that The Tribune's distribution of "Panama and the Canal in Picture and Prose" is fairly under way it is gratifying to note the pleasure with which this beautiful big volume is received. "It's ten times better than I thought it would be," said a young man who came in to get a copy and took another one to send to a friend. "It's the biggest value for the money I ever saw," said a level headed man of business. All day long callers continued to praise the beautiful book and commend The Tribune for offering such a rare opportunity.

Readers are urged to tell their friends about it. Let them know that this is no ordinary offer; that the book is actually worth $4 under the usual trade conditions, but that it is printed in enormous quantities and distributed only through newspapers at the mere expense of distribution; planplanned and printed wholly for the purpose of more firmly establishing the bonds of friendship that should obtain between th enewspaper and its readers. Every one of these books will make new friends for us; otherwise we could not think of distributing them on the terms explained in the Panama certificate printed daily in these columns.

TOMAH DEFEATS MILWAUKEE WEST

Come from Behind in Last Two Quarters and Win Out by 20 to 12 Score

TOMAH, Wis., Oct. 20.—The Tomah highs, after being beaten by a score of 12 to 0 in the first half, came back Saturday and defeated Milwaukee West Division high school football team by a score of 20 to 12. The two teams were even in weight and speed but the West Division boys were by far superior in line plunging.

The game was featured by a sixty yard run by Musgrone, a ten-second man, who without any interference placed the pigskin behind Tomah's goal. Tomah forced the ball up to Milwaukee's ten yard line several times but failed to score.

Buckley of West Side, made the second touchdown in the second quarter, by a sensational run and a neat forwards pass. When the first half was over everything was blue for Tomah. Milwaukee kicked off and by line plunges and end runs Tomah placed the pigskin on Milwaukee's five yard line. Moran took the ball and went over center for the first touchdown for the white and gold. Sickles kicked goal.

The ball then see-sawed up and down the field. Both teams were forced to punt several times. Benjamin making several fine returns, making from twenty to forty yards at a kick. On a forward pass, Earle went over the Milwaukee goal again for a touchdown.

West Side high fumbled and Tomah recovered, bringing the ball up to Milwaukee's ten yard line when Sickles plunged through the line three times and made the score 20 to 12. During the remainder of the game the ball see-sawed back and forth. Milwaukee newspaper critics stated that Benjamin was in line for the All-State team, his work in every game this season being of the best. The lineup was:

Milwaukee, W. D.—Maercker, c; Kieckhefer, rg; Stark, lg; Pauly, lt; Sivyer, rt; Cohn, le; Buckley, re; Musgrone, q; Manhard, lh; Morgan, fb; Heathcote, (capt.) rh.

THE TRIBUNE'S Daily Short Story

A SUMMER ROSE

By GERALDINE SUMNER

(Copyright, 1913, by the McClure Newspaper Syndicate.)

Clifford stood at the bays' heads when the express pulled in at Rickard's Junction. They always plunged a little and a word from him would quiet them.

So it happened he did not see Rose Ashley until she came close to him.

"Cliff, I'm so glad to be back." She threw one arm around his neck and kissed him impulsively. "Did I surprise you?"

Clifford's eyes twinkled with humor. He looked past her to the express agent and the ticket seller. They were both too busy to notice her arrival.

"I didn't know it was you that was coming," he returned.

"You're not very cordial." She held her long silk cloak about her, waiting to be helped up into the surrey, but Clifford was soothing the uneasy bays and did not leave them until the train had gone. He swung up beside her, his mouth shut a bit firmer than usual.

"I asked your mother not to tell you I was coming," she said presently, as they left the village and long bridge behind. Ahead lay the ascending road up into the very heart of the hill country. She loved these great shadowy foothills. In the late October air they seemed robed in royal purple. She lifted her face and breathed in the wonderful fragrance of the pines.

It was just three months since her visit up at the ranch. She had come from a little college town in Ohio, one of a crowd of college girls. It had been a splendid summer lark to them, the month in the cattle country. And she had flirted with Clifford Harkness joyously, audaciously. They had ridden together over trails he had known since boyhood. He had taught her wood lore, things the colleges miss, secrets handed down from the Indians. Somehow she had grown to think of this tall, tanned youngster differently from other men. There was something about him that appealed to the imagination, she told the other girls. He was splendidly pagan in his love of the wilds and the great silences, in his friendship with animals and knowledge of the forces of nature.

Yet when they had been riding far, and had been caught in a thunderstorm, seeking shelter in a deserted cabin, when he had suddenly blurted out his love, she had laughed at him.

"You are splendid as a summer sweetheart, Cliff; but I hardly think I care to marry you!"

"Why not?"

"I might grow tired of all this, and it's your life."

"If you loved me you wouldn't tire of it. You wouldn't care what place they put us on Good's footstool so long as we were together".

She had shaken her head like a wilful child.

"You're awfully dear, Cliff, but you wouldn't be enough to hold me here contented. I'm sorry."

"Then why did you let me kiss you? I don't know how it is down where you come from, but here our girls don't let a man kiss them like that unless they mean business and will marry them."

The crudeness of it hurt her. He had no finesse at all, she told the other girls, ruefully. He was just a big boy barbarian, and she was not at all to blame. Besides, what he said was untrue. She had seen him kiss another girl almost the first day of arrival; a girl who rode up to the ranch on horseback, her face tanned with wind and sun, eyes blue as the Nevada skies and her name, they told Rose, was Nevada Murray. She was a ranger's daughter, and sometimes helped her father.

Clifford had been standing beside her pony talking to her, and he reached up to help her dismount, but she made made the pony move back from thim, and had laughed. And Clifford, his hand on the bridle, had held her down to hi, and kissed her cheek.

He had passed Rose by without a second glance, and she had made up her mind then to make him thoroughly aware of her existence.

But three months back East had taught her many things. She missed the great freedom and spacious grandeur of the country around the ranch. She missed Clifford. Other men seemed trivial beside his frank, quiet nature. She told herself she had been cruel to him, and she would atone, ah, but she would, and gladly. She would give up everything at home, and live with him out at the ranch.

Her brothers and married sister had shrugged shoulders and smiled at her sudden decision, but she was her own mistress, and they let her go back to her purple hills and tall ranchman.

"Clifford," she said softly, after a long silence which he did not seem disposed to break, "I'm not going back."

Clifford watched the tips of the bays' ears thoughtfully.

"You said last summer that there wasn't enough here to make you content."

"I know, but I was wrong. I've missed it all so, and—you."

She waited, but he was silent.

"So you see I've come back, and I want to stay, Cliff."

"Well, it puts me in a mighty queer position," said Cliff stolidly. "I think mother should have told you. Anyway, I will, because I know you don't care for me, and you never would, Rose. You're not that kind. You're too changeable and experimental. I fell in love with you last summer, and it was natural too, with us out riding together, and you talking about all the things I'd missed seeing. You kind of stood to me for that world down yonder, just as I stood to you for this"—he waved his whip out at the country around. "And we didn't fall in love with each other, but with what we each seemed to stand for, don't you see? Now, you're a bit tired and maybe nervous, and you wanted the hills again, so you thought you wanted me too, and you don't any such thing. And even if you did, it's too late now, because I belong to Nevada."

She caught her breath sharply, her eyes closed. He laid one hand on her shoulder with quick sympathy.

"Now, don't, Rose. It wasn't to be, can't you see that? Even now, if I hadn't married, after a few weeks of this, you'd change your mind again and want to flit away on the first eastbound express. It's mighty nice of you to come back, and even remember me. I wasn't your kind of people, though, and N Nevada and I are just known her since she w of a girl, and she's alw ears for kissing her, b any more."

He stopped and gla clearcut, indignant pro ed away from him.

"I suppose you expect back here like a pet t you to change your m gently. "But you did room for doubt."

Are You Subject to Backache?

The muscles of the back are constantly under heavy strain and have but little rest throughout the day. They are therefore in need of all the nourishment and strength that plenty of pure, red blood can give them. Unless they have this help, you will have backache and continue to have it.

Backache seldom or never means kidney trouble. It is nothing more than the tired, weary, wornout muscles of the back showing their exhaustion because of lack of good pure blood.

If you are subject to backache you have reason to suspect the condition of your blood. The one generally recognized blood purifier and builder—Dr. Williams' Pink Pills is worthy a serious trial.

Call at your druggist's and get a box of these pills. You will find them different and more effective than any other medicine you can take for the blood. You will notice that besides strengthening your nerves and banishing your backache Dr. Williams' Pink Pills will tone up your entire system and give you an appetite that will make your meals enjoyable.

AGAIN WISCONSIN PAVES THE WAY

The Saturday Evening Post, progressive in its purposes and usually prophetic in its forecasts, found a stumbling block in the Wisconsin income tax law. From the inception of the Badger plan to enact this law, and all through its first applied year, The Post scouted the idea that a state law could succeed, and during the recent gubernatorial campaign its editorial declarations that only the federal government could solve the income tax, that its application by states was impractical, furnished food for the anti-income tax campaign of Judge John C. Karel.

During the past two years or more The Tribune has had many occasions to quote The Post's arguments, and debate the issues in them raised, and therefore it is with pleasure that we quote the following editorial from the Curtis publication:

"Many states, first and last, have attempted to collect an income tax. Every such attempt was a practical failure until Wisconsin tried her hand at it. Elsewhere the income tax was evaded just as personal-property taxes are.

"As to Wisconsin's reasons for trying an income tax, Senator La Follette recently instanced several eminent citizens of that commonwealth whose sworn returns to the local assessors showed taxable personal property valued at five thousand dollars, but whose estates, upon their demise, showed taxable personalty running from three hundred thousand dollars to over a million. That is the way personal-property taxes are collected everywhere. The farmer and merchant, whose movables are in plain sight, pay; the capitalist does not.

"Wisconsin, in the first year after the new law went on the statute books, collected nearly three and a half million dollars of income tax; and it proposes eventually to do away entirely with the personal-property tax there, substituting the income tax for it. Farmers and merchants should hail this departure gleefully.

"The chief reason for Wisconsin's success with the income tax appears to be that the administration of the law is not left in the hands of local officials—so often subject to local influences and more or less inspired by that local patriotism which makes them fearful their community may pay proportionately more taxes than some other neighboring community.

"The local assessor is an important factor in the failure of the personal-property tax; but Wisconsin's example ought to mark the beginning of the end of the barbarous personalty tax everywhere."

This belated acknowledgment will please Wisconsin readers, for The Post is widely popular here, and seldom has its philosophy been at variance with that of our statesmen. Long ago The Public, Collier's, Everybody's, The Outlook and other recognized liberal publications endorsed our income tax law, and this last word is quite conclusive. To us the interesting thing is that again has it been established that the state of Robert M. La Follette paves the way of progress.

FOR MEN TO THINK ABOUT

The other day a prisoner serving a life sentence at Waupun was allowed to come home because his mother was dying. After fourteen years in the state prison that is only the beginning of his sentence, William Funk does not need to be reminded of the wages of sin. Its bitterness came home to him with all its terrible force when the little baby, now grown almost to young womanhood, he would like to call his own, did not even know him. His leaving the straight road had taken away the home life, the society of friends, the satisfaction of seeing his family grow up around him that might have been his. The pretty girl of 16, who is his daughter but in whom he has no part except the knowledge that he did what he could to blight her life is a reminder of what might have been.

What of the other men who still do the things for which they know their fellowmen must shut them away from their kind? Do they look at the little girl of two, innocent of all wrong, ignorant of unhappiness, and stop to think of what her future must be if her father should go to prison?

Doubtless many men are deterred from wrong doing by the thought of wife and children. But what of the men who are not? Do they think of this when they take the risk? There can be few privileges in life so great as that of being a father. Nothing that risks destroying all the beauty, and the good of such a relation can be worth while.—Milwaukee Journal.

The college professors are arguing in New Jersey whether highway signs should read "Go slow" or "Go slowly."

Probably the motorists pass the signs too rapidly to tell which form is used.

Now that Ohio railroad trains can't serve any liquor after November 4, the location of the Great American desert seems to be definitely established.

No, Gladys, tall steeples and high roofs may still be built, even though the low church party did seem to control the Episcopal convention.

Why say that modern life is not developing great historic personalities, when there are Christy Matthewson and Home Run Baker?

There doesn't seem to be any particular reason why congress should economize, as the income tax can always be doubled.

October weddings now in order, but not always orderly!

Poor Father

The other day the duke of Westminster lent Grosvenor house for a meeting of the Invalid Children's Aid association, and during the meeting one very good story was told, says Pearson's.

A speaker mentioned that one child who had been helped by the society was asked for her father's name.

"Smith," she said.

"And what is his Christian name?" was the next question.

"'Ain't got one,' answered the child, obviously not having a ghost of an idea what sort of a thing a Christian name might be.

"Oh, he must have one!" persisted the questioning. "Let me see; what does your mother call him?"

"Block'ead!" was the staggering reply.

Cause of His Baldness

Uri, a candidate for congress, said to Jonathan, another, during a heated debate:

"I think, sir, you have but one idea in your head. It is a very small one, and if it should swell your head would burst." Jonathan, looking at the bare and venerable head of his opponent, replied: "Well, I think you haven't one in your head, and never had. There has been one scratching around the outside, trying to get in, till it has scratched all the hair off your head. But it didn't get in and it never will." Uri was silent.

Quips and Cranks and Wanton Wiles

Elegy in a Country Printshop

The time-clock tolls the knell of parting day,
The shop-hands rapidly wash up and leave.
The foreman blithely blows his homeward way;
The boss alone remains to stay and grieve.

Now fade the clattering presses on the ear
And all the air a dismal stillness holds,
Save where the boss, in trembling awe and fear.
Doth listen while a harsh supply man scolds.

The pay-checks for the coming Saturday
Are neatly piled upon the boss's desk.
His wrinkles and the iron touch of gray
Do make him look indeed most picturesque.

Full many a year the weary man hath toiled,
Endeavoring to force both ends to meet,
And all these years the merry pot hath boiled,
Yet he can hardly get enough to eat.

Ah me! What of the busy printery?
A heavy mortgage rests on each machine!
What seems to be a money-mintery,
Forsooth, leads but to bankruptcy, I ween!

Of what avail are paper, presses, type,
If they are each sold at a total loss?
The answer, gentle reader, is a pipe.
You've simply got to, got to, know your cost.

The boast of cylinders, the pomp of space,
And all that your investment ever gave—
The presses clattering at rapid pace,
Are leading you into a business grave.

—Joseph Swerling, in American Printer.

His Last Name

"What is your last name?" asked the teacher of a new pupil.

"Arthur, ma'am," replied the boy.

"Arthur!" exclaimed the teacher. "What is your other name?"

"Cooke," said the boy.

"Then, Cooke is your last name, of course," said the teacher, looking at the boy with considerable severity.

"No'm," replied the child, respectfully. "My name was Cooke when I was born, but mother says they didn't name me 'Arthur' for 'most three months."—Lippincott's.

Ancient German Dainties

A courtier of Charles V. in describing the dishes of the ancient Germans, writes: "I saw such kinds of meat eaten as a roasted horse, a cat in jelly, little lizards in hot broth, frogs friend, and divers sorts of meat, which I never knew what they were till they were eaten. And, for God's sake, what is he that shall read my writing and see what is commonly eaten at feasts that it will not in a manner break his heart."

No Need of Scarecrows

Tourist—You have an unusually large acreage of corn under cultivation; don't the crows annoy you a great deal.

Farmer—Oh, not to any extent.

Tourist—That's singular, considering you have no scarecrows.

Impotent Rage

"It has been a long time since I have read any contemporaneous poetry that moved me to tears."

"Only the other day I read a poem that moved me to tears."

"How did it move you so?"

A Romance of Extraordinary Distinction

The Marshal

By Mary Raymond Shipman Andrews
Author of The Perfect Tribute, etc.

He had to guess how long the rope must be, but the bedclothes were all used and the rope was many yards—it must serve. He put the file, with two candle ends which he had saved, in his pocket; he made one end of the strip fast to an untouched iron bar of his window; he weighted the other end; then he looked about a moment, half to see if all of his small resources had been remembered, half in a glance of farewell to a place where he had passed hours never to be forgotten.

With that he vaulted to the window-ledge and took the first knot in a firm grip and let himself out into the dark still night. His feet hung in the air, his hand slid fast—fast down that poor ladder of torn stuff; the die was cast; he was going to things unknown; he had taken a desperate chance and might not go back. And he slipped down, down, from knot to knot. Suddenly he same to the last knot; he had fastened a bit of wood there so that he might know when he got to the end. What was this It certainly was the last knot; the bit of wood scraped his hand as he held it; but his feet did not touch ground.

There he hung, swaying in blackness, not knowing how far he might be above the earth, not knowing what to do. Only a moment, for instantly he knew that in any case he could not go back, if he would, up that slight swinging rope; he must drop, whatever happened. He bent his knees ready for the fall and let go. With a shock he landed and rolled, bruised and out of breath, but not injured; he looked up and in the dimness saw the last knot with its bit of wood swinging in the air twelve feet or so from the ground.

But he had no time given him to consider this point, for at that second, at the far end of the clased yard a door opened, a blaze of light poured out, and a squad of isx soldiers stepped from the castle, torches in the hands of the foremost. Francois dropped, crouching into the shadows against the wall, but his heart grew sick as he realized the futility of this. The soldiers were coming straight toward him.

With that, a gleam on a brighter surface than the ground met his sight, below the level of the ground. His eyes, searching the darkness, made out a great butt of water, sunken by the castle wall. Instantly he slid into it, up to his neck. It was not quite full, and his head did not shown in the shadows of the inside. The blaze of the torches swept close, brighter, as Francois, shivering in the cold water, glued himself to the dark side; the blaze of the torches waved, shadowy, gigantic, across the water and the castle wall; heard the soldiers speak in short deep words; it was like an evil dream, and it slipped past, torches and dark-swinging shadows and heavy tread of men and stern voices, like a dream. The heavy door shut, the lights were gone, everything was still.

More dead than alive, Francois dripped from the water-butt. The hardest part of his night's job, the part that needed all his strength of body and brain, was immediately before him, and he stood nerveless, with clicking teeth, as limp as the traditional drowned rat. A moment he stood so, utterly discouraged, without confidence, without hope. Then with his trembling lips he framed words, words familiar to him for years, and with that, in a shock, he felt strength and courage rising in him like a slow calm flood It was not less a miracle because there was no sign in the heavens, no earthquake or lightning; it was not less a miracle because many people living now might tell of a like help in fearful need. As it was once a long time ago, the water of his blood was changed into wine. So the prisoner stood in the courtyard in the blackness of midnight and found himself ready.

He groped his way to the shed he had seen from the governor's window; with his old boyish agility he scrambled up its sloping roof and felt for the coping he had noticed—the coping wide enough for a man's foot; he had found it; he had found a water-pipe above to help him stand on it; he was on the coping, face flat to the wall, working his way with infinite delicate care to the window of the governor. He never knew how long that part took; it seemed a great while, although not many feet lay between the shed and the window. Then he felt the stone sill of the window; his hand crept up; it was open—wide open. With a strong pull he had swung himself over and stood in the dark, in the governor's bedroom.

Stood and listened, hardly daring for the first instant to draw the long breath he sorely needed. Then he smiled. No necessity for that caution at least. The governor was snoring a heavy aggressive snore which would have drowned most noises. Francois stood quiet till his eyes had grown accustomed to the shadows, and then they searched about quickly. Ah! there they were, the governor's clothes. On a chair by his bed. With wary steps he stole across. He lifted off one or two things and suddenly there was a jingle.

"Ah!" growled the governor and flung out his hand, and the snore came to a full stop.

The hand searched the darkness a second; all but touched that of Francois, then fell limply, the head turned away, with a deep sigh. Like a statue Francois stood, frozen to the floor, and dared not look at the figure stirring in the bed, for fear his gaze might awake the sleeper. For he slept; the sound of the keys had only jarred some chord in his uneasy dream Long minutes after the snoring was in full progress again Francois waited, and then with careful fingers he clasped the entire bunch of keys softly and carried them into the next room.

TRIPLE-STRIP

NEMO CORSETS $3.00 No 324

PRESERVE YOUR FIGURE AND GUARD YOUR HEALTH

The one way to retain your good looks is to PRESERVE YOUR HEALTH.

A sure way to lose your good looks, your health and your happiness, is to wear a corset that is unscientific—ill-fitting and flabby.

There are plenty of them!

If you want the "corsetless figure," you must wear a corset—one with firm, fine lines. A flimsy waist or a "boneless" corset may be "easy;" but it will surely give you a sloppy, shapeless figure—permanently.

Common sense tells you that you can't reduce your hips without wearing a firm corset, and if that corset is rigid and unyielding, you are simply bidding for ill-health and bad looks.

The NEMO is the ONLY corset that can reduce your hips sufficiently to give you the proper silhouette for the "corsetless figure" without imperiling your health and looks.

The reason? Here's the answer!

LASTIKOPS WEBBING and LASTIKOPS CLOTH—gores, gussets and bands of these new semi-elastic fabrics, original Nemo inventions, patented and used ONLY in our corsets.

$4.00 No 409

These are the only DURABLE elastic fabrics in existence. They have changed the whole idea of corset-making.

For example, Model 324, pictured above. The semi-elastic Lasticurve-Back and the long, flexible skirt give you a slender appearance with the utmost comfort. It's a wonderful corset and a great value—$3.00.

And the graceful No. 409, with semi-elastic Limshaping bands on the long skirt, insures extreme reduction below the waist, with complete comfort in any position—$4.00.

Nemo Corsets are sold everywhere. Most dealers will show them to you gladly; others for some reason, only when you insist. BE A WISE WOMAN! INSIST! Accept no substitute.

LAURA PILGER WEDS E. J. FITZPATRICK

Married Yesterday Afternoon at St. James' Parsonage by Father Murphy

Laura Pearl Pilger, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Pilger, 1823 Wood street, and Edward J. Fitzpatrick, 1606 Berlin street were married Saturday afternoon at 2:30 at the parsonage of St. James Catholic church, Rev. Ambrose Murphy officiating.

The bride was prettily attired in a gown of white charmeuse, with shadow lace and pearl trimming and carried a bouquet of bride's roses. The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Mabel Pilger, who acted as maid of honor. The best man was John Fitzpatrick, brother of the groom. Following the ceremony a wedding supper was held at the home of the bride.

EXPRESS TRAIN TO BLAME FOR WRECK

This Is Assertion of Railroad Men Who Were on Scene of Saturday's Disaster

That the express train was responsible for the Burlington wreck at Nelson, Wis., Saturday when it crashed with passenger train No. 54 is the assertion of La Crosse railroad men who were on the scene of the accident soon after it occurred.

The facts in the case, as near as can be ascertained, are these:

Passenger train No. 54, southbound, had orders to meet express train No. 57, northbound, at Nelson. The express train got its "meet orders" at Grand Crossing.

The passenger train, with Engineer Michael Dorsey, 1542 Wood street, La Crosse, at the throttle, had reached Nelson and was pulling on the sidetrack. The express train with Engineer Clarence King, 1633 Wood street, in the cab, came rushing into Nelson and, apparently, had forgotten the orders to meet.

Engineer Dorsey of the passenger sighted the express and knowing that the train would be only half over the switch and would be hit in the center if it attempted to make the side track, reversed the engine and started to back onto the main track. His quick action, it is claimed, saved the lives of hundreds of men, women and children in the coaches, the express hitting the engine square in the head. He risked his own life and the life of Fireman E. C. Ubrich was sacrificed.

One local railroad official made the remark tuat "had the passenger been sixty feet further in the side side track nothing could have prevented a horrible calamity."

TWO HUNTERS LOSE VALUABLE DOGS

With hunting getting better every day and their chief means of tracking game disappeared, Joe Rinartz, 133 Mill street and John Longway, a resident of French Island, have applied to the north side police for aid in finding two valuable dogs. John Longway is the owner of a Chesapeake spaniel that he declares was stolen from his farm Saturday morning. Rinartz says his dog was a valued hound pup. He does not know whether the dog strayed or was stolen.

To prove that sugar can be reduced in many cases of Diabetes in people past fifty we will mail on request formula for quantitative test for sugar that will show the percentage from day to day.

Diabetics are largely on Codein, admitted to be hopeless. Under Fulton's Diabetic Compound the thirst often begins to abate and the strength to increase before the sugar shows much decline, thus patients often know the case is responding before the tests show it.

If you are of middle age or over and have Diabetes, do you not owe it to yourself and family to try Fulton's Diabetic Compound before giving up. It can be had at all druggists. Druggists supplied by Spence-McCord Co., wholesale distributors.

HAS FINE TECHNIQUE

MILCH SISTERS AT MAJESTIC DISPLAYS APTITUDE AND SKILL ON VIOLIN AND CELLO

The Majestic theater program for the first part of this week is very interesting and enjoyable. Among the other good numbers is a musical one, which desirves particular praise. It is the violin playing of Miss Arma S. Milch and the cello playing by Miss Adeline P. Milch. The violinist is a young lady of much violinistic aptitude and of solid schooling. Finger and bow technique have been brought to a high state of proficiency and the young lady's style of playing is in every way admirable.

Miss Adeline plays the cello with much techiical fluency and produces a tone of good quality. She has been a pupil of the celebrated Professor Gruetzmacher of Cologne and is an enthusiastic and very industrious young musician.

These young ladies will doubtless advance still further in their artistic endeavors, for they have talent in abundance, to which is added the indispensable love for music and the will and determination to work. The mother of the young artists accompanies them on their tours. She is a pianist of splendid quality. It was a rare treat for the writer to hear this mother accompany her two daughters with fine artistic taste and skill.

It Would Flatter Man.

Few men have deserved and few have won higher praise in an epitaph than the following, which was written by Lord Byron on the tomb of his dead Newfoundland:

"Near this spot are deposited the remains of one who possessed beauty without vanity, strength without insolence, courage without ferocity and all the virtues of man without his vices. This praise, which would be unmeaning flattery if inscribed over human ashes, is but a just tribute to the memory of Boatswain, a dog, who was born at Newfoundland May 3, 1803, and died at Newstead abbey Nov. 18, 1808."

His Importance.

"Dobbleday seems to think himself very important. Why, he can't even stand on a corner and wait for a trolley car without putting on as many airs as if he were laying a cornerstone."—Birmingham Age-Herald.

Oyster Week Oct. 20 to 25

Why You Should EAT OYSTERS

BECAUSE President Rowe of the Oyster Growers and Dealers Association of North America says:

"While the cost of meat has greatly increased and has become prohibitive to many consumers, the great increase in the production of oysters by artificial propagation and cultivation permits them to be furnished to the consumer at no more cost than many years ago."

BECAUSE Dr. Carl L. Alsberg, Chief of the United States Bureau of Chemistry, says:

"I could wish the number of sources of dangerous milk supply was as small and the percentage of pure, wholesome milk was as great as the wholesome, safe oysters that reach our table."

BECAUSE Dr. Julius Nelson, Professor of Biology of Rutger's College, says:

"Oysters are a good food. Oysters come nearer in composition to cow's milk than do most other meats, as all the four kinds of nutrients needed are present in good degree. Oysters have a larger excess of the flesh-building substance relative to the other constituents than milk, so we 'balance the ration' by addition of starchy foods and fats when eating oysters, thus securing a good meal at a cost that compares favorably with that when other meats are chosen."

EAT LESS MEAT IF BACK HURTS

Take a glass of Salts to flush kidneys if bladder bothers you.

Eating meat regularly eventually produces kidney trouble in some form or other, says a well-known authority, because the uric acid in meat excites the kidneys, they become overworked; get sluggish; clog up and cause all sorts of distress, particularly backache and misery in the kidney region; rheumatic twinges, severe headaches, acid stomach, constipation, torpid liver, sleeplessness, bladder and urinary irritation.

The moment your back hurts or kidneys aren't acting right, or if bladder bothers you, get about four ounces of Jad Salts from any good pharmacy; take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast for a few days and your kidneys will then act fine. This famous salts is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and has been used for generations to flush clogged kidneys and stimulate them to normal activity; also to neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer irritates, thus ending bladder disorders.

Jad Salts cannot injure anyone; makes a delightful effervescent lithia-water drink which millions of men and women take now and then to keep the kidneys and urinary organs clean, thus avoiding serious kidney disease.

OFFICIALS FORGET FIGHT AT PICNIC

Alderman Frank Kohn Settles Argument as to Who Is Chief by Presiding at Festivities

Differences between Mayor Oli J. Sorensen and Police Chief John B. Webber over who is the real chief of police were forgotten temporarily yesterday when these two officials joined with other city dads at the annual fall outing of the city officers.

It was held at Oehler's cave and the day from beginning to end was one round of enjoyment, according to those fortunate enough to be "in" on the affair.

Someone tried to start an argument over the merits of the police controversy, it is alleged, when Alderman Frank Kohn announced that he was "chief" of the day and that settled it. Later he proved the assertion by presiding over the cooking.

All of the city officers and practically the entire common council, with a few invited guests attended. They left from Gund's brewery at 8 o'clock in the morning, returning early in the evening.

NORMALS BATTLE TO 0 TO 0 SCORE

River Falls and La Crosse Play Hard Fought Scoreless Game Saturday

Both teams failed to score Saturday afternoon when the River Falls normal aggregation met the local normalites in a hard fought game of football. Before the end of the first half was over several of the visiting team members were carried off the field with slight injuries. Several fumbles took place and a near fist fight resulted when one of the visitors started to slug in his frenzy of endeavor to take the oval over the chalk mark.

For stubbornness the La Crosse fans have seldom witnessed a game such as was played Saturday. Short gains were madee. The first half of the performance saw the ball in La Crosse territory, although it never reached telephoning distance of the goal. In the second half the visitors missed a splendid chance to score a touchdown when one of their warriors made a fumble.

A crowd of several hundred filled the grand stand. The air was just crisp enough to add zest to the occasion. Never has a crowd shown more school spirit than was displayed during the game.

OADAMS- BENTLEY

The King Street Methodist church was crowded Saturday evening to witness the marriage of Miss Hazel Oadams, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. T. S. Oadams, to Mr. Walter Hyett Bentley, of Oak Park, Ill. The ceremony was performed by Rev. T. Stanley Oadams, the father of the bride, assisted by L. A. Brenner, district superintendent, of Sparta.

The bride was attended by her sister, Miss Florence Oadams, as maid of honor. Miss Louise Bentley of Oak Park, Ill., sister of the groom, and Miss Mary Stratton of St. Cloud, Minn., were the bridesmaids. Mr. Aldridge Bentley, brother of the groom, was the best man and the ushers were Messrs. J. D. McCarthy of Chicago and Thomas Stratton of St. Cloud, Minn. Little Louise Dunham, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. N. Dunham, was flower girl.

The church was prettily decorated with palms and bay trees. Tall wicker vases filled with white crysanthemums made a beautiful back ground for the bridal party. After the ceremony a reception was held at the parsonage, 231 South Eighth street. Mrs. A. W. Schall was in general charge of the rooms. In the dining room Mrs. J. A. Thwing served and Mrs. Kinnear poured the coffee. They were assisted by Mesdames D. C. Faber, Harry Atkins, G. R. Reay, and Miss Josephine McCann.

The bride wore a handsome gown of ivory white duchesse satin charmeuse, entraine, with garniture of princess lace and seed pearls. She wore a veil crowned by a dainty cap and carried a shower bouquet of bride's roses and lilies of the valley. Her going away costume was of tailored blue with hat to match. The maid of honor wore pink charmeuse veiled in a draped tunic of pink chiffon and carried My Maryland roses of pink. The bridesmaids were gowned in Nile green crepe over which was draped tunics of filmy green chiffon. They carried pink Killarney roses. The flower girl wore a frock of white with no coloring.

SAGE TEA TURNS GRAY HAIR DARK

It's Grandmother's Recipe to Bring Back Color and Lustre to Hair.

That beautiful, even shade of dark, glossy hair can only be had by brewing a mixture of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Your hair is your charm. It makes or mars the face. When it fades, turns gray, streaked and looks dry, wispy and scraggly, just an application or two of Sage and Sulphur enhances its appearance a hundredfold.

Don't bother to prepare the tonic; you can get from any drug store a 50 cent bottle of Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Hair Remedy," ready to use. This can always be depnded upon to bring back the natural color, thickness and lustre of your hair and remove dandruff, stop scalp itching and falling hair.

Everybody uses "Wyeth's" Sage and Sulphur because it darkens so naturally and evenly thatn obody can tell it has been applied. You simply dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through the hair, taking one small strand at a time; by morning the gray hair has disappeared, and after another application it becomes beautifully dark and appears glossy, lustrous and abundant.

IS CHILD CROSS, FEVERISH, SICK

Look, Mother! If tongue is coated, give "California Syrup of Figs"

Children love this "fruit laxative," and nothing else cleanses the tender stomach, liver and bowels so nicely.

A child simply will not stop playing to empty the bowels, and the result is, they become tightly clogged with waste, liver gets sluggish, stomach sours, then your little one becomes cross, half-sick, feverish, don't eat, sleep or act naturally, breath is bad, system full of cold, has sore throat, stomach-ache or diarrhoea. Listen, Mother! See if tongue is coated, then give a teaspoonful of "California Syrup of Figs," and in a few hours all the constipated waste, sour bile and undigested food passes out of the system, and you have a well, playful child again.

Millions of mothers give "California Syrup of Figs" because it is perfectly harmless; children love it, and it never fails to act on the stomach, liver and bowels.

Ask your druggist for a 50-cent bottle of "California Syrup of Figs," which has full directions for babies, children of all ages and for grown-ups plainly printed on the bottle. Beware of counterfeits sold here. Get the genuine, made by "California Fig Syrup Company." Refuse any other kind with contempt.

SULZER ALLEGES MURPHY OFFERED TO PAY HIS DEBTS

not been a fight about politics, but a naked fight of dishonesty to crush a governor of the state of New York because he dared to be his own master.

Offered Financial Aid

"Just prior to taking office as governor, either just before Christmas, or between Christmas and New Year's, I spent an afternoon with Mr. Murphy, at his request, at his private room in Delmonico's. His attitude was very friendly and confidential. He said he was my friend; that he knew my financial condition and wished to help me out. As he went on I was amazed at his knowledge of my intimate personal affairs.

"To my astonishment he informed me that he knew that I was heavily in debt. Then he offered me money to pay my debts, and have enough left to take things easy while governor."

"Did he tell you where this money was to come from, Governor?"

"He said that this was really a party matter, and that the money he would give me was party money, that I had been a popular candidate, easily elected and for less money than any other candidate in his recollection.

"He said that nobody would know anything about it; that I could pay what I owed and go to Albany feeling easy financially.

Talk Over Appointments

"I talked from Albany with Mr. McCall (Judge Edward E. McCall) over the telephone about the public service commissionership. Judge McCall met me with his automobile in the 125th street station he told me Mr. Murphy was at his house waiting for us.

"I met Mr. Murphy in the front room. We talked over several matters. Mr. Murphy urged me to appoint his friend, John Galvin, public service commissioner in the place of Mr. Wilcox. I urged the appointment of Henry Morgenthau or Geo. Foster, Peabody or Colonel John Temple Graves. Mr. Murphy would not hear of these men. He talked long and earnestly in behalf of Mr. Galvin. Finally, I suggested as a compromise Judge McCall. McCall, himself, said he would accept provided it was agreeable to Mr. Murphy.

"At his meeting and subsequently Mr. Murphy demanded of me pledges regarding legislation and especially concerning appointments. . . . . He insisted on James E. Gaffney for highway commissioner in case I wished to supplant Mr. Reel.

"Mr. Murphy finally said: 'I am for Gafney. The organization demands his appointment and I want you to do it.' I replied I will make no promise about it. He said: 'It will be Gaffney or war.' I had several talks with Mr. Murphy and in some of these talks I told him I was the governor and that I intended to be governor.

"He laughed at me and rebuked me for this and said I might be the governor, but that he controlled the legislature, that unless I did what he wanted me to regarding legislation my appointments, I could not get my nominations confirmed and that he would block everything."

FEAR DIAZ WILL BRING DISORDER

Arrival of Candidate for Mexican Presidency Surprises Politicians

SCENTED PLOT TO BAR HIM OUT

Refused to Return to Mexico on Gunboat Sent to Havana by Huerta

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 20.—Friends of both the Huerta and Diaz factions today professed to fear disorders when General Felix Diaz returns. The instigator of the revolt against Huerta left Havana yesterday and was expected at Vera Cruz today. His actual return to Mexico is a matter of considerable surprise. It was thought that Diaz was eliminated from the presidential race when General Huerta sent him to Europe after the Japanese government refused to receive him in Tokio as a special envoy.

Diplomats today were animatedly discussing a sensational story that the jailed deputies had on foot a plan to sell the Mexican presidency to the highest foreign bidder. The story is said to have leaked out of constitutional code communications to Washington and New York, but it is believed that Huerta inspired the story to defend his dictatorial action.

VERA CRUZ, Oct. 20.—General Felix Diaz was expected to arrive here late today or early tomorrow aboard the steamer Corcovado, from Havana. His departure from Cuba was delayed until 11 o'clock yesterday. The Mexican gunboat Zaragosa, which Huerta ordered to Havana to bring Diaz home, came into this port yesterday afternoon without Diaz. On board was General Blanquet, Huerta's representative, who explained that the gunboat put back because of bad weather, but it is known that Diaz refused to board the Zaragosa, fearing a plot.

The gunboat, he was told, was sent to "protect him from assassination," but Diaz was warned that Huerta planned to have the Zaragosa break a crank shaft or meet with some other plausible accident that would keep her out of port until after Sunday, election day. This would make Diaz ineligible for president, as the constitution provides that a president must be on Mexican soil when elected.

SAYS HE NEVER SAW PLAINTIFF

Gilmeister appeared this morning before Judge Brindley, protesting his ignorance of the affair. Colwell didn't appear and the case was dismissed Later Colwell came in, demanded to know where the defendant was, and when informed that he had "been and gone" announced that he would sue for damages. He says he worked for Gilmeister as bartender for two years.

THAW IN FILMS AT THE MAJESTIC

A special film production showing Harry K. Thaw during his fight with the immigration authorities nd the courts of Canada has been obtained by Manager Frank Koppelberger of the Majestic theater and is being shown as a feature of the show this week.

Never, before this reel was shown, have the citizens of the United States had a chance to view Thaw as he really is. The reel was taken at the request of Thaw, to leave it to the judgment of those witnessing it, whether or not he is mad.

Thaw is shown in the jail going over papers with his lawyer in preparing his defense, and talking with his intimate friend, Hal Reed. Wm. T. Jerome is shown in a characteristic pose.

Foreign Markets

New York Stocks

NEW YORK, Oct. 20.—The stock market opened quiet, but stocks as a rule showed fractional gains.

11 a. m.—Towards the end of the first hour the market was dull and uninteresting. Prices were inclined to sag and room traders confidently voiced the belief that the rally was over. Dealings were almost wholly professional and were largely confined to a few stocks with the result that many of the active issues remained unopened up to 11 o'clock.

Noon—A bear raid on New Haven and Pennsylvania caused weakness in the market in the second hour. New Haven sold at the lowest price in about fifty years.

2 p. m.—The market was quiet in the early afternoon.

The stock market closed active.

Chicago Grain Review

CHICAGO, Oct. 20.—Very light receipts at the Northwestern markets were factors that overruled a lower cable and strengthened the local market. Futures were up ¼c at the start and gained an additional ⅞c for December and ⅝c for May.

Corn prices benefitted by the advance in wheat and poor quality of local receipts. After opening stronger, December advanced ⅝c and May ¼c in the forenoon session. Shorts covered freely.

Oats opened ¼c higher for December and May and gained an additional ¼c during the forenoon trade. The market was affected by the advance in oats and corn and a steady commission house demand.

Provisions trade was better and prices were steady.

Wheat eased off a trifle in the afternoon, thhe decline being only fractional. Corn and oats futures closed at noon prices. rovisions continued to shade lower until the close.

LA FAYETTE, Ind., Oct. 20.—In a sensational run for 80 yards through the entire Wisconsin team, fighting his own way, Oliphant, the sensational Purdue halfback, scored the touchdown in the middle of the last quarter that tied the Badgers. He followed the touchdown with a kick. Ten thousand people witnessed the hardest fought gridiron battle on Stuart's field, Purdue university that has been seen here in years. It was a battle royal in which both teams played on even terms.

The plays by both elevens were more of a bucking contest than open plays. Very few forward passes were pulled off and both sides were equal in the intercepting of these plays.

Purdue Shows Class

Purdue excelled in the first and final quarters of the game, while Wisconsin did the same in the second and third periods. Wisconsin made its touchdown in the second quarter after a series of line buck plays, Tandberg going over the line near the close of the second period. Bellows kicked goal.

Glossop, the Purdue center, played a most wonderful game in the line, making many daring tackles for losses by his opponents. Blocker, Bishop, Usner and Turner were very aggressive. Wisconsin excelled in interfeence.

Six Badgers Stars

Lang, Keeler, Butler, Cummings, Van Ghent and Tandberg carried off the honors for the Badgers. Lineup and summary:

SPARTA BATTLES OSHKOSH TO TIE

Each Eleven Blanks Other in Fierce Game at Sparta Saturday

SPARTA, Wis., Oct. 20.—One of the fiercest games ever seen on the locals' grounds was played Saturday between the Sparta team and the Oshkosh team, the score being 0 to 0. The whole Oshkosh team was held up by their quarterback, Simpson, but one man could not win the game and so surveying the game from all aspects the Sparta team outclassed the visitors in every respect. Simpson was the only man on the Oshkosh team that could make their downs.

The strong eature of the Oshkosh team was their forward passes and the home team covered every one but three of the dozens that they tried. Thus they were forced to play straight football and there is where the home team was strong and so they played the Oshkosh team off their feet.

A. Nicol for the home team made the downs nearly every time by line smashes, or Jefferson, J. Nicol or F. Evans took the ball around the ends. In the first quarter the Sparta boys put the pigskin to within four inches of the line but a fumble cost Sparta the ball. The Sparta boys were a little nervous the first quarter but later they worked steadily as a well oiled machine under the coaching of Vaughn. At the end of the first quarter Oshkosh made their longest run, twenty yards, by Simpson.

In the second quarter there was only a succession of punts and downs and so on to the third. It was noticeable that the Sparta boys were the more tired but that they made their downs better and also that as soon as Oshkosh got the ball they always punted. At no time was the ball within 14 yards of Sparta's goal. In the last querter Oshkosh hardly made its downs once, but the Sparta boys made their way steadily toward Oshkosh's goal. For some reason or other they always lost the ball when about 8 to 15 yards from the goal and then Oshkosh always punted back and so ended the game, scoreless.

Taking a good look at the game Sparta showed that they were the stronger although they were outweighed 15 pounds to the man.

Hyde Park schools of Chicago have challenged the Sparta team to a game at either Madison or La Crosse but it is not known whether they will accept the challenge. Sparta may have to play thme Oshkosh team again but it would be on a neutral field.

The line-up is as follows:

Sparta—Fanning and Abrahamson, re; Evans, rt; Smith, McConnell, Sutherland,rg; Lloyd, c; Almer, Wehle, le; Hinton, Heitman, lg.; Bergman, lt; Jeferson, q; Evans, lh; J. Nicol, rh; A. Nicol,fb.

Oshkosh—Rideout, c; Brand, re; Gorman, rt; Brokens, Cook, rg; Halverson, Strandenraus, le; Puibe, Kramer, lg; Simpson, q; Callies, Kramer, lt; Nelson, lh; Divinity, rh; Harrington, fb.

Earl Jefferson, Sparta, umpire; Wagner, La Crosse, referee; head linesman, Junkman, Sparta.

WOLGAST SET BACK BOUT CRACKS RIB

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Oct. 20.—Ad Wolgast's efforts to win back the lightweight championship was halted yesterday afternoon when the Michigan bearcat while boxing with Anton, the Greek, sustained a broken rib.

As a result his ten round match with Charley White of Chicago, scheduled for Friday night at Dreamland by the National Athletic club, has been called off.

Wolgast arrived in the city yesterday morning from Cadillac, Mich. He immediately started preparing himself for his mill with the sensational Hebrew lightweight. A run over the road was first on his program and then followed work with his ring partners. He started with Anton, the Greek.

PALZER KNOCKED OUT BY DAILEY

PITTSBURG, Pa., Oct. 20.—Al Palzer was knocked out here Saturday night in the second round by Dan Dailey. The fight was the second pugilistic surprise here within a week. Last Saturday night George Chip of Madison, knocked out Frank Klaus, claimant of the middleweight championship.

The defeat of Klaus in the sixth round was a sensation. Dailey's feat of knocking out Palzer Saturday night was viewed in a similar manner.
